

Develop a Strong Work Ethic

Having a good work ethic means being dependable, responsible, honest and hardworking and employers rank a strong work ethic as one of the top qualities they seek in the employees they hire or move up in their organizations.

Because work ethic is so important to employers, they will generally include questions about it during a job interview. Briefly respond to each of the questions below.

Dependable

What have you done that shows you are dependable?

Hard Working

Describe the behavior of someone you know who is a hard worker.

Responsible

What behaviors does a responsible person demonstrate?

Honest

Why do you believe honesty is the best policy?

Consider your answers to each of the four questions, then respond to this challenging job interview question...

How would you describe your work ethic?
