

Grow Your Network

Reid Hoffman, LinkedIn co-founder and author of The Start-up of YOU, believes that to succeed in today's work world it takes a lot of personal and professional connections — a network. Hoffman emphasizes that relationships matter to a person's career no matter the organization, because people control resources, opportunities, information and access. Fill in the information about your connections and consider how you could nurture and grow them.

What are three things you can do to cultivate and strengthen your network connections?
